U.S. Environmental Protection Agency Reviews Cleanup at the Warwick Landfill Superfund Site

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency is conducting its sixth five-year review of the Warwick Landfill Superfund Site, located in the Town of Warwick, Orange County, New York. This review seeks to confirm that the cleanup approaches selected by the EPA in the 1991 and 1995 Records of Decision are protective of people's health and the environment. The selected cleanup plans include the following components:

- Constructing a multi-layer landfill cap, or permanent barrier between the trash and the surrounding environment, that meets New York State landfill closure requirements and prevents people and wildlife from coming in contact with contaminants;
- Constructing a venting system that removes gas from the landfill pile;
- Installing groundwater monitoring wells within the landfill;
- Regular groundwater monitoring and cap maintenance; and,
- Establishing an easement, a legal limitation on land use, that restricts development and groundwater pumping on the landfill to ensure the cap's integrity.

The EPA will include a summary of these activities and evaluation of the long-term protectiveness of the cleanup approach in the upcoming Five-Year Review report. The report will be available in July 2026.

What is an EPA Five-Year Review?

The EPA inspects Superfund sites every five years to ensure that cleanups conducted remain fully protective of people's health and the environment. These regular reviews, which are required by federal law when contaminants remain at a site, include:

- Inspecting the site and cleanup technologies;
- Reviewing monitoring data, operating data, and maintenance records; and
- Determining if any new regulatory requirements have been established since EPA's original cleanup decision was finalized.
